BE STUDENT CENTER

'24 Mukwonago Midnight Magic Charity of Choice

In response to a felt need in the Mukwonago community, a group of local parents and youth leaders have created an engagement program targeting middle and high school students. The Be Student Center is a non-profit dedicated to encouraging and equipping students in 7th-12th grade with life skills, a sense of community and opportunities for social connectedness.

“Every student is unique and has value that only they can bring to this world. We at the Be Student Center want to help students find what they love while making meaningful connections along the way” says the center’s director Lindsey Kempinski, highlighting the program’s mission to create an inclusive space for all students, particularly those who haven’t yet found their niche in traditional school activities.

The initiative comes at a crucial time. According to the 2023 Winter MHS Connectedness Survey, while 80% of students participate in extracurricular activities, a significant portion of the student body remains disconnected from after-school engagement opportunities.

The Be Student Center offers a three-pronged approach to student engagement:

At Park View Middle School, students can participate in Be Connected, a casual after-school hangout every Monday from 2:45 to 5:00 PM, providing a relaxed environment for social interaction and introduction to a variety of hobbies, interests, and career paths. Students have tried their hand at cooking, sign language, handling reptiles, and have learned about the importance of volunteerism through a partnership opportunity with Lasagna Love.

Wednesday afternoons feature dedicated homework help sessions, called Be Successful, from 2:45 to 4:00 PM. These sessions support academic success while building confidence. Skilled teachers as well as Mukwonago High School student volunteers offer assistance with a wide variety of classes.

Beyond the school setting, the center organizes monthly evening events throughout the community, fostering connections between students and their broader social environment. These Be Social events emphasize age-appropriate fun and further introduction to the many avenues for engagement our community has to offer. Students have participated in football tailgate events, beach parties, park nights, and even an Among Us-themed who-done-it event.

The center’s comprehensive approach incorporates:

- Leadership development opportunities
- Talent showcase opportunities
- Academic support services
- Life skills training
- Peer mentoring programs

“The Be Student Center creates a safe space where students can be themselves and make connections. It’s a place where they are accepted from the minute they walk in. The connections they make can lower stress, raise their self-esteem, and expose them to many opportunities to try new things” explains Betsy DuKatz, BSC’s program coordinator.

For 7th through 12th-grade students interested in joining the program, the Be Student Center welcomes drop-ins at their Monday and Wednesday sessions at Park View Middle School as well as at their Be Social community events. Information about upcoming evening events can be found at bestudentcenter.com or by following Be Student Center on their social media platforms. As the program continues to grow, organizers hope to bridge the engagement gap and ensure every student finds their place within the school community. Parents and students interested in learning more about the Be Student Center can contact Be Student Center through their website.
